Try downloading a save game from the start of the game (all the way back to the beginning - over 1GB download, depending on which DLC you have). If it works, try a different one. if not, put in a quick replay. Note that this may not help you, because your issue is likely a mod conflict, so it could be that the saved game has the mods that the save file you are using does not. Possible solution You could try upgrading your game to the latest patch, it might help. I suggest you uninstall the mods you have installed from each other as well, if you can do this, and see if your issue is resolved. In case it is, you should post this question to the Steam forums (there is an option on
